Bilateral forearm venography prior to AV access creation

Superficial veins have been destroyed by repeat cannulations in both forearms for drips or blood samplings
CO2 venography prior to AV access creation: elbow veins destroyed by previous cannulations (for CT or MRI?)

Destruction of the basilic vein

Occlusion of the cephalic vein
Diagnostic radiologists belong to the vein killer group

Catherine, diagnostic radiologist, (lovely) member of the French elbow vein killer group...
How peripheral venous access should be performed

- Preferentially use veins of the dorsum of the hands
- Preserve forearm and elbow veins
Longue stenose artere radiale stenose veine
